Mohsen Jaber Arabloo*

(Received: 8 November 2006, Accepted: 14 March 2007)

Abstract

The bailer shall deliver the property to its owner due to playing the role of buffering in the state of Forcible bail circumstances. Now there is a dispute, whether the nuisance agent who acts as buffer between object of consideration and owner of consideration as revenues of his property shall be treated as the owner of consideration or not? This article treats the concepts of nuisance consideration in details; it defines the scope of meaning in the field of jurisprudence classifications, including doctrine of jurisprudence and proofs afforded for bail of nuisance consideration as well as disputes of proofs forwarded. Furthermore, refinement and correction of disputes shall be discussed in terms of genuine prescriptions cited for refinement of the issues and comprehensive explanation of the case.

Keywords Nuisance consideration, Bail, Doctrine of dominant, consensus over consideration and object of consideration, ownership, property.
